Theodore Nelson is another fisherman who has taken a plunge into the cold depths of the Columbia. Yesterday afternoon while Nelson was putting his net out he reached over the gunwale to untangle a cork that had fouled the net. He slipped on the wet bottom of the boat and took his daily bath. He was hauled out without incurring damage.

Among the Finnish population there was war for a time yesterday afternoon. The war started with a preliminary skirmish among the children of two families and ended in a broken nose and a skinned fist among the children's elders. Later it was announced that the elders aforesaid had repaired to a saloon to settle their differences in that liquid wherein men drown both their sorrows and their joys.

The Astoria & Columbia River railroad issued a unique folder entitled, "What the Wild Waves Say at Seaside." The folder is well illustrated and treats to a great extent of the merits of the scenery between Portland and the city by the sea. Astoria occupies an important part of the folder, and there is a picture of the river during regatta time. There is also the life-story and photograph of Te Tennis Tennis, the last of the Clatsops.

The midnight closing ordinance which, it was reported some days ago, was to be introduced at the meeting of the council last night, failed to materialize. It is now understood that the ordinance will not be introduced, but that saloons will be permitted to stay open day and night. For a time several of the councilmen seemed determined to present the measure and pass it, but have since, it is understood, experienced a change of opinion regarding the matter. The reported departure caused some apprehension among the saloonmen of the city, who feared their business would suffer as a result of the new regulation.

Over 1200 people went to Seaside Sunday from this place and Portland. The crowd was a very orderly one and spent the day in various ways, but refrained from spending their money, according to the reports of Seaside merchants. One restaurant man stated that he took in 80 cents, and couldn't for the life of him think what to do with the money. In the meantime a hundred persons were eating home-made lunches within a stone's throw of his place of business. The day was a fine one at the beach and the crowd had a pleasant time. How pleasant may be judged from the actions of a man on the train who grew so hilarious that he leaned from the window as the train was leaving Seaside, waved his handkerchief and cried: "Good-bye, clams!"

The Retail Clerks' Protective Association held a meeting last night and elected the following officers: President, William Ross; first vice president, Charles Iverson; second vice president, John E. Johnson; financial secretary, Emil Nieman; recording secretary, O. W. Whitman; treasurer, Randall Reed; guide, H. B. Connell; guardian, Irv. Morrison; delegates to Central Labor Council, H. B. Connell, William Ross, Charles E. Johnson, A. W. Bennet and H. E. Roelfs.

The street committee of the council yesterday opened bids for the improvement of three streets. For the improvement of Thirty-seventh street from the alleyway between blocks 14 and 15 to Commercial street, the following bids were presented: Birch & Jacobsen, $299.75; C. G. Palmberg, $354; Otto Peterson, $304.50. The contract was awarded to Birch & Jacobsen. For the improvement of Duane street from Thirty-seventh to Thirty-eighth, C. G. Palmberg bid $590, and Birch & Jacobsen $542.70, the last named firm getting the contract. The following bids were received for the improvement of Thirty-sixth street from Franklin avenue to Duane street: C. G. Palmberg, $2730; W. A. Goodin, $2274. Goodin got the contract.

Formal orders were handed down in the circuit court yesterday by Judge McBride as follows: Maude Bryan vs. M. H. Bryan, decree of divorce; Thomas Dolg vs. John W. Welch, decree confirming sale; A. Kiljunen vs. C. C. C. Rosenberg, judgment; Sophia Harrison vs. J. Henry Harrison, default; city of Astoria vs. J. E. W. MacFarlane, dismissed; W. C. Parsons vs. Astoria & Columbia River railroad, dismissed; H. E. Noble vs. Pauline M. Thiel, set for trial June 27; Stoffer Peter Raski vs. Marcus Wise, referred to C. E. Runyon; Alexander McDonald vs. Clatsop county, defendant allowed to file amended answer; Charlotte Grimberg, administratrix, vs. Columbia River Packers' Association, set for trial September 20; J. P. Carlson vs. Gus Hagblom, dismissed; John Turple vs. D. H. Welch, set for trial June 28; Jane K. and A. M. Smith vs. O. R. & N. Co., and Bridget Grant et al. vs. O. R. & N. Co., demurrers overruled and defendant allowed 20 days to answer, both cases referred to C. E. Runyon to take testimony; Emily M. Casbel vs. T. G. Kelly et al., set for argument June 21; Mary Denk vs. Jacob Denk, decree of divorce.

Councilman Belland reports that the goats and sheep and lambs are still enjoying themselves by eating up east end flower gardens. When Mr. Belland brought the matter before the council a week ago, City Attorney Smith suggested to him that he tell the troubles of the Third ward to the dogcatcher. Mr. Peterson informed the councilman that he had no authority to apprehend goats; that his jurisdiction did not extend beyond Thirty-eighth street, and that he had no particular desire to go into the goat-catching business. So the animals are still enjoying their liberty, and the Third ward is still in trouble.
